PERSHING CALLS BREST CAMP O.K.

DENIES REPORTS OF POOR CONDITIONS DESCRIBED AS TERRIBLE IN PRESS.

SICK RATE RUNS LOW

More than 985,000 Troops Entered and Over 103,000 Left Via That Port; Total Deaths, 1,131.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Health conditions at Brest, France, general camp conditions and the method of handling troops through that camp have received high praise from all who inspected them since the first formal day. General Pershing reported today to the American government the message from Gen. Pershing himself that General Harboard, his chief of staff, the chief surgeon, and the inspector general of the A. E. F. had all personally inspected the camp during the last month.

Conditions at the camp have been described as terrible in published reports and by witnesses before congressional committees.

The daily admission rate per 1,000 men for troops in Brest and vicinity for the first 19 days of February was 1.45. The similar figure for November was 2.11, for December 1.2 and for January 1.63.

Says Sick Rate is Low.

"The sick rate is unusually low," Gen. Pershing said, "and is a direct measure of the sanitary situation at that place. Corresponding rates for the whole American expeditionary forces, not counting men wounded in action, is as follows: for November 2.2; for December, 2.1; for January, 2.04.

The daily average death rate per 1,000 men for troops at Brest and vicinity is shown as follows: November, 5.15; December, 2.03; January, 3.15; February to date, 3.83.

85,000 Land in Brest.

"More than 985,000 men entered France via Brest," the cable states, "and over 103,000 left Brest. Total deaths among all these men and among the personnel of transports from November 2, 1917, to February 7, 1919 were 1,131. Deaths on incoming boats or by the time patients reached hospitals at Brest, 2,191; of these 1,817 burials occurred in September, October, and November, last, when influenza and pneumonia caused surges on transports from the United States and were in no way due to any health conditions existing at Brest."

EIGHT GERMAN SHIPS TO TRANSPORT YANKS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Definite information reached the war department today that eight German steamships, including the Imperator, had been allotted the United States for transporting troops from France. These ships now at Hamburg will provide accommodations for 60,000 to 65,000 additional Yanks monthly.

Sufficient tonnage now is available or in sight, it was stated officially today, to return every American soldier from Europe before the end of the coming summer if such a policy were decided on by the government.

Embarkations from overseas up to March 1, will total 400,000, leaving approximately 1,000,000.

Real Admiral Wohl announced that six destroyers would be sent out from home to meet the George Washington and escort her to an anchorage.

Clemenceau Is Impatient To Get Back To Peace Table

LATEST REPORTS

Paris, Feb. 20.—The bullet which wounded Premier Clemenceau pene- trated his lungs, it was revealed by an x-ray examination. This was officially stated shortly after noon today.

Paris, Feb. 20.—It was stated at Premier Clemenceau's residence at 6:30 o'clock this morning that the premier had passed an excellent night in an x-ray examination of the wound taken for development.

It would appear that after a period of convalescence, M. Clemenceau will be able to resume his activities about the time that President Wilson and Premiers Lloyd George and Orlando return to Paris.

TELLS OWN STORY

Paris, Feb. 20.—Premier Clemenceau's own story of the attack upon him as he told it to a reporter given in The Matin today was as follows:

"Yesterday when I was passing that spot at the corner of the Boulevard D'essert, I remarked a strange silhouetted figure upon the pavement showing some one examining me attentively. The silhouette was that of a rather evil looking man. I said to myself, 'Hello, I am in a no good.' The morning at the same spot I observed the same silhouette and immediately thought 'why that's my friend of yesterday.' I hadn't time to continue the reflection for the premier's mind never was clearer nor his thought more rapid. He discusses his wound and his symptoms technically just as if they were those of another person."

day that the delegates would suggest waiting until the beginning of next week before resuming their work. M. Clemenceau is impatient to resume his place at the head of the conference. As he refers to the subject he gives the impression of believing that he will be taking his chair at the sittings again in four or five days, for he keeps repeating "I do nothing."

Now he feels his wound occasionally, which gives him much pain. He bears this exceptionally well, and the twinges do not impair his customary good humor. Thus shortly after he was wounded, when one of his colleagues came to see him, the premier, smiling broadly, remarked to the Mazarin, "The Bokken invited me to hunt the tiger in his country. Well, it is the anarchists who have 'killed the tiger,' but they missed him."

The premier yesterday sent for Sister Theonisse, the nun who nursed him when he was operated upon a few years ago, and she now is attending him. He spent the day yesterday in his arm chair, but stated that his favorite old grandfather's chair should be brought up from his country house at Bernouville.

The premier's mind never was clearer nor his thought more rapid. He discusses his wound and his symptoms technically just as if they were those of another person."

ORIGIN OF ATTACK

Paris, Feb. 20.—Was the attempt upon the life of Clemenceau's life of Bolshevik origin?

General Pichon urged the adoption of a commission of arbitration between employers and employees such as that in Assemblyman T. S. Nolan's bill, during what he termed the readjustment period.

"The country will not now continue on the artificial war basis," he said. "This is the time for shrinking. Capital and labor must come to a common level where business and industry can

"If we must get poor let us get poor together. Corporations will be forced to cut wages, and labor must be satisfied with less in proportion. A commission of conciliation should be formed to settle wage disputes. It will not need executive power. I believe that the workingman, if he sees that the cut in wage is justifiable, will condone his work."

"The government spoke at some length on the fish and game laws of the state.

The sentiment favoring protection is growing, he said. "It must grow. We must be reasonable in our demands or the game will all go in the course of protection of game," he said.

"The health of the entire command is excellent. Colonel Stewart's report said, the sick and wounded being well cared for. He added:

"The allied command is capable of taking care of itself against the whole Bolsheviks."

INCREASED BALLOT REQUIREMENT BILL MEETS OPPOSITION

(By Fred L. Holmes)

Madison, Feb. 20.—Determined opposition was made by Assemblyman John F. Donnelly, Milwaukee, to the Bartingale bill increasing the percentage to get on the party ballot from 10 percent to 15 percent. He declared that it would disfranchise the minority party. Mr. Bartingale declared that this change in the law would bring out a larger attendance at the primaries to nominate candidates.

R. Barry, chairman of the Republican county committee of Milwaukee, was read protesting against the passage of the measure. A letter from O. A. Budde, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, declared that the passage of the bill would lay the legislature "open to the criticism of wishing to eliminate minority parties entirely."

Assemblyman John Markham, Independence, appeared in favor of his bill to pay a mileage to delegates attending the party conventions. No one appeared in opposition to the measure, although there was some suggestion from the committee that the bill might be limited to 6 cents mileage instead of 10 cents as provided in the bill. Information furnished by the secretary of state indicated that under the 10 cent mileage plan, the cost of the mileage of this legislature was $4,648.50 and it was estimated that with three separate conventions here, the amount expended for mileage would possibly be about three times that amount.

The larger expression of the will of the people would be secured if the primary elections were held in the spring, at the time of the town elections. In September was the convention of Assemblyman E. F. Gunz, Buffalo county, before the assembly elections committee Wednesday afternoon. He also declares that farmers were less busy at the time.

The assembly judiciary committee recommended for death the Maszkowski bill requiring a unanimous decision of the state legislature to declare it unconstitutional. The senate corporation committee delayed for two weeks the hearings on the Arnold home rule amendment and the Zumach bill providing for the mortgaging of a municipal utility to buy an additional plant or make extensions.

AGNEW GETS FRENCH WAR DECORATION

"I woke up in an ambulance 40 hours after I witnessed a shell falling beside me," said Private Russell Agnew, a former Janesville boy who arrived home yesterday after spending nine months chasing the Hun in France. He was the victim of an August 8, and he stated when discussing the incident that he remembered the shell striking the ground a short distance from him and the next thing he remembered he was in an ambulance 40 miles south on his way to hospital.

Private Agnew was a former employee of the Berlin Barber Shop and when the war started he answered his country's call and enlisted with Company G, of Madison.

He remained with the Company until they reached France and he was then transferred to the 1st Division. Shortly after he went into action and by his many brave deeds he was awarded the much coveted Croix de Guerre. He also wears a divisional citation cord, awarded by the French to his division.

"We went to France with the sole thought of driving those brutes to the infernal regions," Private Agnew said, and we surely drove them within a few miles of the place."

I met several Janesville fellows over there," said Agnew. All of them were in the best of health and glad that they had dig their bit toward ridding the world of the German brutes."

NORGORD URGES ALL HERDS BE ACCREDITED

Madison, Feb. 20.—"All herd owners should immediately take steps to have their herd accredited under the state and national accredited herd plan," says C. P. Norgord, commissioner of agriculture.

All herds, both grade and pure-bred are eligible for this list.

He enlisted at Fort Meyer, Va., shortly after war was declared and was assigned to the aviation section. His knowledge of wireless telegraphy and the installation of the wireless instruments was of such nature that he was put in charge of the work.

While in France he had a big battle. Lieut. Arthur said, I can tell that the Yanks sure put up an awful fight and when they started it was night.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

FRANK MURPHY.

First Sgt. Frank Murphy, Co. A, 123 Infantry, has written an interesting account of battles he was in. His letter follows:

Rauback, Germany, Jan. 17, 1919.

"I met Fred Flaherty in the hospital. In fact he went back the same time I did. We got it in the Argonne woods. But the hardest fighting was at Soissons. We relieved the 126th Infantry Aug. 28. We made the relief about six in the morning. The rest of the morning we spent driving the Germans. I fell asleep about 1 o'clock and woke up at two and had to get ready to resist a counter attack which never came. About that time I and Sgt. Flaherty went out with a small patrol to locate the German machine guns. At three o'clock we got orders to go over the top as soon as the gas shells went off about 3:15 and the Germans were still about 700 yards away from us. And with a hall of bullets that greeted us I never saw before or hope to see again. Every place you could see was bullets kicking up the dirt just like when it is raining hard and below me it rained, but not water. I had the first shot in the position and the Captain was the only other to return in the company. Our captain told us not to wait for orders but to do as we thought best. Well I advanced about three hundred yards and lost all but eleven men. Company L on our left had gone only about 100 yards and couldn't go any further. The Germans shot us down so fast, so bad if I could, but it looked like plain murder to go any further, so I waited. Soon I could see some men coming out of a trench a little to my right and thought it was some of our company and I couldn't always see them on account of the ground. I gave the order and my 11 men jumped ahead. We would run for about 100 yards and then stop and shell had to rest for a minute or two. Then I would blow my whistle and away we would go again. We were almost on a line with the men we saw come out of the trenches. We were almost to the town where the Germans were. I sent a runner over and found out it was the 1st battalion I seen come out of the trench and they said our battalion was not supposed to advance so far. Well I had to wait 10 minutes of the town and with the first battalion we made a line. It was dark by that time. I sent a runner out and round out that my platoon was at the only men in our battalion who had advanced so I placed myself under the command of a lieutenant that had charge of the line and then sent runners out to find out where the rest of the company was. We were almost surrounded and the runners didn't report back and I thought they were killed. It sure was a night of misery and one I don't want to repeat. In the morning I was sent to the edge of the town to turn a German machine gun against the enemy. When I got back I reported I was going to find the company and I saw my men under the command of Sergeant Johnson Cambridge. I went back through the trench and found our captain lying dead almost where we started from. I was surprised but had no time as the Germans were shelling that trench for all they were worth. I found the company about three kilometers back as they were relieved at midnight the night before and were under command of 1st Sgt. William Ryan. The battalion had formed and were going back for another attack and I arrived just in time to go back. I ate a can of beans on the way and arrived at our station at 11 o'clock and dug ourselves in when Sgt. Ryan got an order to report to battalion headquarters. I sat in my hole waiting for him when I got an order to report to. When I got there I was told Sgt. Ryan was wounded and I was to have command of the company. We received plans for the attack for that afternoon which came off at three that afternoon."

RAYMOND C. CLATWORTHY. The following letter was written by Corp. Raymond C. Clatworthy, 2nd Engineers, to his father, C. M. Clatworthy, 220 South Franklin street, Engers, Germany.

Jan. 17, 1919.

"I am driving a big Dutch truck up and down the Rhine river. It can't get over there now to think another George is dead. There are a lot of boys killed over here and I am lucky to be here after all and will be a happy boy in the good old states when I get back. I have seen over 50,000 boys over here and not a one from Janesville and only one I knew. See W. M. Madsen of Edgerton so you see it is hard to find anyone over here."

Around the State*Drops Dead on Road

Stevens Point, Feb. 20.—William Brunner, member of the county board of supervisors from the village of Almond, Portage County, dropped dead on the road near his home Monday afternoon. He had gone on a business trip to the adjoining town of Belmont, when on account of the ice covered roads he decided to push on in his automobile tires. An exertion aggravated his heart trouble and Mr. Brunner fell over dead. He was a former town chairman of the Republican ticket a few years ago.

The Gazette Stands Ready to Support all Endeavor to Make Janesville and Vicinity a Bigger and Better Community.

THE COMMUNITY BUILDING.

The plan of erecting a community building as a memorial to our soldiers meets with the approval of the United States bureau of education, department of the interior. A circular letter sent to every school community of the country follows:

"A number of communities have already concluded that a building, in constant use as a reminder of the sacrifice made by the soldiers and sailors of the great war, is more appropriate and enduring than the conventional grave-yard monument.
There is a growing conviction that the conventional stone shaft, placed in a graveyard among the dead, is not a fitting memorial to those who died for freedom. The suggestion, made both in France and America, that these memorials take the form of community buildings, dedicated to civic and social uses, is obviously wise and ought to meet universal approval. On the walls of such a building should hang a bronze tablet containing the names of each community's martyrs to liberty."

"This type of memorial will guarantee that no boy who gave his life for justice and freedom will be forgotten. The number of American lives lost in this war is very small in comparison to those lost in the Civil war. If a community lost only three or four, it might not think it worth while to build a monument. But a community building is needed entirely apart from its memorial purpose.
The chief advantage of this type of memorial, however, is not that it is economical, but that it keeps green an inspiring memory, and it seeks to put into operation, through its civic and social activities, the ideals for which our boys fought in France."

"Funds for this purpose could be raised more easily, if they were raised in the form of Liberty bonds during the fifth loan, which is to come in the spring. The bonds can be used as money when the time comes to build.
Thus a community can serve itself, while, at the same time, it is rendering a national service. By this method more money for the government could be raised than by any other.
Not only would many individuals gladly contribute an extra bond or two for the benefit of their local community, but many who are unable to do this could pool their small gifts and contribute to a bond. Likewise, entertainments and social activities can be utilized to raise money for the same purpose. Opportunity should be given for as many as possible to have a part in the enterprise. For men to contribute outright a few Liberty bonds to a local community cause, will help to dispel the delusion that a man is doing anything especially generous when he puts his money into an investment which offers the best security in the world and a fair rate of interest. To couple the fifth loan with frogs' gifts and soldiers' memorials will make it in a real sense a Victory loan. It will be much more than this.
It will be a Reconstruction loan."

ROAD PROJECTS.

The United States department of labor in a letter to state and other officials tells of the sums available for highway construction under the federal aid plan. It urges that steps be taken at once to plan road work so that the unemployed problem may be relieved. The announcement by the department follows:

"Less than 45 miles of roads are reported completed by states available of federal aid. Appropriations made by congress to pay the federal government's proportion of the cost of state road building projects now total $48,500,000. This soon will be increased materially. An addition of $200,000,000 probably will be available during the next three years.

"With these millions available and with the approval of the federal government on 750 road-building projects involving 7,861 miles of road, less than 45 miles—44,662 to be exact—of roads have been constructed under the federal aid plan.

"The information and education service of the U. S. department of labor, co-operating with such national organizations as the American Automobile association, the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and the National Highway Industries association, is calling to the attention of state officials the desirability of at once getting under way such state road construction as has been approved by the federal government and for which the latter has set aside funds."

"In addition to obvious benefits derived from improved highways, the department of labor urges a new argument, especially important at this time when labor conditions are arranging anxiety and business is endeavoring to find an embarrassed way back to peace conditions. For the states at once to go in for road building is, according to the department of labor, a direct way to stimulate business and absorb labor. To all that has been said heretofore on the value of good roads, now may be added road building's potentialities as an efficacious tonic for the industrial organization of the country."

"The department of labor does not deny that road materials and labor costs are high. Rather, the information and education service asserts, indications are that prices will remain high for some time to come and, in view of the forecasts for market conditions, it is imprudent to longer hold up state construction anticipating lower construction costs. Secretary of labor Wilson expressed the conviction that an era of unprecedented activities is ahead of American industry. He asserted his confidence in the ability of American industry to absorb, eventually, the labor released from the army and from war industries. He did not hesitate, however, to emphasize the fact that during the months of transition from war to peace conditions, the labor situation is fraught with disquieting possibil-ties if it is altogether neglected.

"Road building will provide buffer employment for thousands of men until they can be absorbed by industries as the latter gradually reach their peace-time production. Road building immediately pays dividends in increased land values. Roads are an asset to every state and to their permanent value as public improvements is now added their temporary value, of incalculable importance, of stimulating business and protecting states against the possibilities of a period of general unemployment."

"If the various states would get under way such road-building projects as have been approved by the federal government, $56,171,848.72 would be spent for better roads and, if the construction costs are higher than in pre-war times, the actual financial outlay for the states need not be higher, since approximately half of the bill would be paid by the federal government."

"There have been set aside to cover the federal government's portion of the costs on the 750 road projects approved in various states, more than $21,000,000. This now is available for states which will go to work on their road construction on plans approved by the federal government."

"Although federal aid for state roads has been available since 1917, but eight states report road projects involving federal aid, completed.

"The status of road-building projects in Wisconsin as of December 31, 1918, is as follows: Projects approved by the federal government, 48; mileage 230.95; estimated cost, $1,663,937.19; federal aid, $54,645.25; projects and mileage completed, none; total allotment of federal aid, $1,276,969.02; paid to state from federal fund, $52, 237.19."

Some men in this city cannot see the advantages of an increased population for Janesville and are not disposed to make any move to prepare for an increased trade. However, two men who heard Mr. Durant's talk at Flint, Mich., on the possibilities of this city as the result of the industrial development are on the ground looking over the situation with a view to establishing businesses here.

Niagara Falls as the seat of the league of nations is a great little advertiser. The council has passed resolutions asking that the city be made the permanent seat for the league. Inasmuch as peace is the primary motive of the league, how-could Niagara Falls expect to furnish the proper setting with crowds of bridal couples and the road of the rapids ever present?

Telegrams are pouring into the Gorman assembly protesting against the signing of the armistice. One from Berlin demands that a period of national mourning be ordered. If Germany does not watch her step she will have an excuse for a period of national mourning and it will not be over having to carry out the terms of the armistice, either.

It is said that the government will soon allow an increase of 75 cents a ton on the price of anthracite coal.
Well, we have learned to use soft coal and the summer is not so far away.
So why worry us with that sort of threat? We are concerned more about ice for next summer.

One of the sensible measures which has been introduced in the state legislature is that which will provide for control of streams and lakes insofar as the state health board shall sanction plans for water and sewage systems.

Boston folks are planning to greet President Wilson by wireless telephone. Some of our congressmen are planning to greet him, but not by telephone.

THEIR OPINIONS

Same kids. The boys who used to trample down the gardens and hedges are the same type of kids with Boy Scouts are going to plant 200,000 pine trees in honor of Theodore Roosevelt. Marquette Eagle Star.

Always ready. Wisconsin may have been the first state to organize to back the league of nations, but it can be said that Wisconsin got ready to back it before it had the remotest idea just what it was going to back. It's good to be up first. It's better to know what you are going to be first doing. Kenesha News.

Too Many Laws. If the members of the legislature wished to do their full duty to the people of the state, they will pass just a few of the many bills which have been introduced as possible, adjourn and go home. There are already several thousand more laws on the statute books than are necessary and every one added makes a further complication.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Need Action. There was a great deal of talk during the winter as to what was going to be done to prevent the natural period of unemployment which was to be expected after the end of the conflict.
There is still some talk on the subject but action has been infinitesimal and in the meantime the menace of unemployment grows greater day by day.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Worth While. The "Better Wisconsin Campaign" is designed to help the farmers of this state put their operations on a sound business basis; it is designed to develop brain fertility as well as to improve the live stock standards. It is a worth while campaign and the interesting thing about it is that while it promises large returns to the farmers it is being put on without obligation or expense to them. Pond du Lac Commonwealth.

Step Is Short. The legislature has passed the bill giving women the right to vote for presidential electors. This is a step in favor of woman suffrage. But the bill does not go far enough. The women men should have the right to vote for presidential electors they have just as much right to vote the entire ticket, for governor and all state officers as well as for county officers. It's coming to that any way and why not give it to them now?

Honor is the recompense of those who do right without seeking recompense.

THE STRANGER ON THE OTHER STREET.

The Stranger on the other street
Whom I have never chanced to meet
May have a code of honor fine.
That's every bit as strict as mine.
It may be he is clean of speech
And only decent things would teach
To children in a kindly way.
But I don't know, and so I say,
For fear of dangers dark and grim,
I will not trust my boy to him.

The stranger I have never met
May be a gentleman, and yet
I will not let my youngster go
To learn from one I do not know
The ways of life, the world to stay.
And take my ease from day to day.

I will not settle down at night
And tell myself the boy's all right
To me, for I shall be his chum.

For aid my boy shall never go Unto a man I do not know.

The risk's too great. I would not dare

To trust him in a stranger's care.

It's the same for me.

I'll know myself the games he plays His comrades, and I'll know their

I'll put my selfish pleasures by
To keep on him a watchful eye.

When he's in trouble, he shall come

"Cut out the sob stuff while you are in this room," Judge Maxfield said this morning when James Cantl, a Beloit Italian, started to shed real tears when asked if he was guilty of being intoxicated.

Cantl was found at the corner of North Main street and Prospect avenue last evening, proclaiming that he had been robbed. He explained to the judge that he could not understand English.

"Don't you want to talk?" Judge Maxfield asked.

CHAPTER XIII.

One Dog's Day.

There must be a real philosophy in all proverbs. "Every dog has his day" is a significant one. It surely was for Pitchoune. He had his day. It was a glorious one, a terrible one, a memorable one, and he played his little part in it. He awoke at the gray dawn, springing like a flash from the foot of Sabron's bed, where he lay asleep, in response to the sound of the reveille, and Sabron sprang up after him.

Pitchoune in a few moments was in the center of real disorder. All he knew was that he followed his master all day long. The dog's knowledge did not comprehend the fact that not only had the native village, of which his master spoke in his letter to Miss Redmond, been destroyed, but that Sabron's regiment itself was menaced by a concerted and concentrated attack from an entire tribe led by fanatics as hotminded and as fierce as the Mahdi of Sudanese history.

Pitchoune followed at the heels of his master's horse. No one paid any attention to him. Heaven knows why he was not trampled to death, but he was not. No one trod on him; no horse's hoof hit his little tiny form that managed in the midst of carnage and death to keep itself secure and his hide whole. He smelt the gunpowder, he smelt the smoke, sniffed at it, threw up his pretty head and barked.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's none of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimplies—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety percent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

PETEY DINK—SHE LOOKED GOOD TO PETEY BUT HE LOOKED CROOKED TO HER.

panted and panted; yelped and tore about and followed. He was not conscious of anything but that Sabron was in motion; that Sabron, his beloved master, was in action of some kind or other and he, a soldier's dog, was in action, too. He howled at fierce dark faces, when he saw them. He snarled at the bullets that whizzed around his ears and, laying his little ears back, he shook his black muzzle in the very grin of death.

Sabron's horse was shot under him, and then Pitchoune saw his master, sprang upon him, and his feelings were not hurt that no attention was paid him, that not even his name was called, and as Sabron struggled on, Pitchoune followed. It was his day; he was fighting the natives; he was part of a battle; he was a soldier's dog! Little by little the creatures and things around him grew fewer, the smoke cleared and rolled away, there were a few feet of freedom around him in which he stood and barked; then he was off again close to his master's heels and not too soon. He did not know the blow that struck Sabron, but he saw him fall, and then and there came into his canine heart some knowledge of the importance of his day. He had raced himself weary. Every bone in his little body ached with fatigue.

Sabron lay his length on the bed of a dried-up river, one of those phantom-like channels of a desert stream whose course runs watery only certain times of the year. Sabron, wounded in the abdomen, lay on his side. Pitchoune snarled him from head to foot, addressed himself to his restoration in his own way. He licked his face and hands and ears, sat sentinel at the beloved head where the forehead was covered with sweat and blood. He barked feverishly and to his attentive ears there came no answer whatsoever, either from the wounded man in the bed of the African river or from the silent plains.

Sabron was deserted. He had fallen and not been missed and his regiment, routed by the Arabs, had been driven into retreat. Finally the little dog, who knew by instinct that life remained in his master's body, set himself at work vigorously to awaken a sign of life. He attacked Sabron's shoulder as though it were a prey; he worried him, barked in his ear, struck him lightly with his paw, and finally, awakening to dreadful pain, to fever and to isolation, awakening perhaps to the battle for life, to the attentions of his friend, the spani opened his eyes.

Sabron's wound was serious, but his body was vigorous, strong and healthy, and his mind more so. There was a film over it just now. He raised himself with great effort, and in a moment realized where he was and that to linger there was a horrible death. On each side of the river rose an inclined bank, not very high and thickly grown with mimosa bush. This meant to him beyond it and, probably, within easy reach, there would be shade from the intense and dreadful glare beating down upon him, with death in every ray. He groaned and Pitchoune's voice answered him. Sabron paid no attention to his dog, did not even call his name. His mind, accustomed to quick decisions and to a matter-of-fact consideration of life, instantly took its proper course. He must get out of the river bed or die there, rot there.

What there was before him to do was so stupendous an undertaking that it made him almost unconscious of the all alone in the desert, with death above him and death on every hand, crawled, dragged, hatched along out of the river to the bank, cheered, encouraged by his little dog.

For a drop of water he would have given—oh, what had he to give? For a little shade he would have given—about all he had to give had been given to his duty in this engagement which could never bring him glory, or distinction or any renown. The work of a spani with a native regiment is not a very glorious affair. He was simply an officer who fell doing his daily work.

Pitchoune barked and cried out to him: "Courage!"

"I shall die here at the foot of the mimosa," Sabron thought; and his hands hardly had the courage or strength to grasp the first bushes by which he meant to pull himself up on the bank. The little dog was close to him, leaping, springing near him, and Sabron did not know how tired and thirsty and exhausted his brave little companion was, or that perhaps in that heroic little body there was as much of a soldier's soul as in his own human form.

The sun was so hot that it seemed to sing in the bushes. Its torrid fever struck on his brow, struck on his chest; why did it not kill him? He was not even delirious, and yet the bushes sang dry and crackling. What was their melody? He knew it. Just one melody haunted him always, and now he knew the words: they were a prayer for—

"But," Sab., said aloud, "it is a prayer to be said at night and not in the afternoon of an African hell!"

He began to climb; he pulled himself along, leaving his track in blood.

He fainted twice, and the thick growth held him like the wicker of a cradle, and before he came to his consciousness the sun was mercifully going down. He finally reached the top of the bank and lay there panting, weaker and ever weaker. His courage the only living thing in him, Sabron, with Pitchoune by his side, dragged himself into healing hands.

All that night Sabron was delirious; his mind traveled far into vague fantastic countries, led back again, ever gently, by a tune, to safety.

Every now and then he would realize that he was alone on the vast desert, destined to finish his existence here, to cease being a human creature and to become nothing but carrion.

Moments of consciousness succeeded those of mental disorder. Every now and then he would feel Pitchoune close to his arm. The dog licked his hand and the touch was grateful to the deserted officer. Pitchoune licked his master's cheek and Sabron felt that there was another life beside his in the wilderness. Neither dog nor man could long exist, however, without food or drink and Sabron was growing momentarily weaker.

CARDS BEAT DETROIT
IN EXCITING BATTLE;
PLAY AGAIN TONIGHTLocal Five Defeats Michigan Champs
29 to 18—Second Defeat in Eight Years for Invaders

In one of the greatest exhibitions of real basketball ever seen on the local floor, the Local Five, who were allowed at a widely heralded Detroit Y. M. C. O. champs by the score of 29 to 18 at the armory last night. Incidentally it was the second 6rubbing administered the Michigan five in eight years and was a heartbreaking defeat for them.

The two teams will battle again tonight at the armory. The game should prove closer and more exciting as the Detroit bunch will have their regular center, Henderson, former Michigan university star, in a suit. The stinging defeat given them last night has given them cause to fight and they are out for blood tonight. The game will begin at nine o'clock.

Lentz, Forward Stars.

Murphy of the Cards was easily the star of last night's fray playing a great rear game and caging seven field goals. The whole gang put up a great game and bewildered the Wolverines with their short fast passes. Working like a well oiled machine the Cards were giants on the offensive and at the same time maintained a defense that was impenetrable. Only twice during the whole game did the X. M. C. O.'s break through for short baskets while five of the Cards' goals were scored from short distances.

Hemmat at center showed some real speed. He had the jump on his opponents which gave the Cards the advantage in keeping the ball. The Detroit tossers were forced to play a defensive game throughout although occasionally they became aggressive and counted. Although they fought like demons they seemed to lose the ball every time they copped on to it. The Cards' interpretation of an on and shot passes advanced the sphere down the floor with three, four and sometimes five men. Detroit's attempt at a powerful four-man defense in the last part of the game was a failure. They didn't seem to know how to play this style of game.

Strong on Defensive.

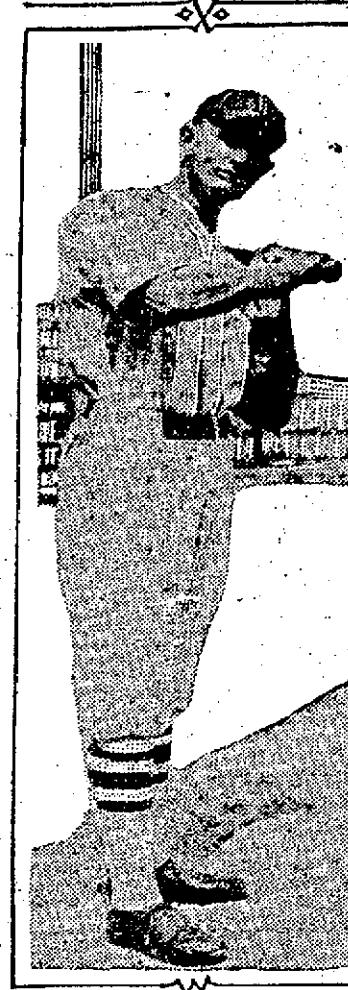

Hemmat, playing the forward opposite Murphy, demonstrated some of his old-time form, ripping up Detroit's attempts at team work and breaking through once for a field goal. He also dropped in a free throw. Casserly and Peterson, guards were making remarkable fast holding down the score. They had the Michigan aggression worried to death. The X. M. C. O.'s seemed to be afraid to go far beyond the middle of the floor to shoot.

For the invaders, Whitman and Whitlock played in the stellar roles. Dermody seemed to be lost in the small floor and failed to perform his celebrated role. The Detroit man, however, the Cards played a little too roughly. Janesville's comeback in the second half was the feature of the battle. Behind at the intermission 13 to 10, the Cards cut loose in the second period and with Murphy going strong scored 19 points while the visitors were scattered over.

First Half Past.

Detroit opened the scoring in the first half when Smoketwicz counted with a free throw route after Hemmat had attempted a tackle in the middle of the floor. Peterson scored the initial basket for the Cards dropping in a pretty one from long range. Dermody hit the woodenware for 10 for his high score. The match was a hair-bitter.

In a second match game Janesville Delivery Co. No. 1, five defeated No. 2 team by a margin of 48 pins. Dopp hit 155 for high score.

A meeting of church representatives for the purpose of organizing a church basketball league will be held Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. Some one from each church is expected to be present.

A schedule of games will be drawn up, according to Physical Director Craig of the M. C. A., and games will probably start the following week at the high school and Congregational church gymnasiums can be secured, at least three games will be played weekly. Eligibility and age rulings will be adopted.

There was no church basketball league last year, but for several years in the past the church games were considered important.

MADISON PREPS MEET
STARS HERE TONIGHT

The "Y" All-Stars will play their thirteenth game of the season tonight when they will stack up against the fast Madison "prep" team at the armory as a preliminary to the Detroit January 25th. The game will start at 7:30.

Kuhn's volleyball team forged into second place in the league yesterday by defeating Tallman's men 21-10, 21-13, and 21-3. The first two frames were played fast, Kuhn coming from behind to win the second contest. The last frame was a walkaway for the Stars. Lovejoy and Huebel meet Friday.

Pierson, serving and Cunningham and Bassford did the best work for the winners. Tallman was the star of the losing team.

There are five events on the card, three of them being class races on the installment plan, each for being worth $3,000, and trotters for two and three year old trotters to each other.

The purses are for the 2:05 and 2:14 trotters and the 2:05 pacers, all of them being renewals of fixtures which resulted in spirited contests at former meetings.
